

HULL OUTLINES U. S. POSITION

BRITAIN SCORNS HITLER PEACE OFFER

FOREIGN SECRETARY LORD HALIFAX GIVES ANSWER TO GERMANY

SAYS GREAT BRITAIN WILL NOT STOP FIGHTING UNTIL FREEDOM SECURED FOR ALL

LONDON, July 22.—(P)—Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary, answered Adolf Hitler's peace offer today with a declaration that Great Britain will "not stop fighting until freedom for ourselves and others is secure."

"We realize the struggle may cost us everything," the foreign secretary said in a world broadcast, "but just because the things we are defending are worth any sacrifice, it is a noble privilege to be the defender of things so precious."

Hitler made plain in his July 18 speech to the Reichstag, Halifax declared, that "his picture of Europe is one of Germany lording it over these peoples whom he has one by one deprived of their freedom."

Britain's picture of Europe, Halifax said, is one of "a free association of independent states and, because of that contrast, we remain unmoved by threats unaccompanied by any appeal to our sense of right or justice."

In every part of Britain, he declared, there is "a spirit of indomitable resolution." "The peoples of the British Commonwealth, along with those who love truth and freedom and justice, will not accept this new world of Hitler's," Lord Halifax said.

He asserted that "across the wide Atlantic there are mighty nations which view his works with growing detestation."

"The people of the United States did not build their new home in order to surrender it to this fanatic x x x we take heart from the certain knowledge that that great people pray for our victory."

Appeal to Fear

The foreign minister declared Hitler's "only appeal was to the baser instinct of fear, and his only replies were threats." He rejected that.

Explaining on the difference between British and German concepts, he said:

"We want to be able to live our own lives as we like; and not have to look over our shoulders all the time to see if the Gestapo is making up a case that will land us in a concentration camp."

"We want to worship God as we like and this religious freedom based on conscience we will not go."

"But in Germany the people have given their consciences to Hitler so that they have become machines."

He accused Hitler of a steadily growing appetite for conquest "until today as assumes the role of a supreme protector."

Heller's Axis partner, Italian Premier Mussolini, added, "flushed by his triumphs over a France whom he has not fought may be allowed the role of master of a Mediterranean which he has not conquered."

GREAT BRITAIN HAS FLUNG DEFIACE AT TREATS OF HITLER

BRITAIN SAYS STRUGGLE MAY COST EVERYTHING BUT WILL CONTINUE FIGHT

By The Associated Press. Britain flung back today defiance of Adolf Hitler's threat to blast the British Isles into submission unless she yields to Nazi-dictated peace terms.

With authorized Nazis in Berlin declaring that Hitler may now order the "zero hour" for the invasion of England at any moment, Britain's foreign minister, Lord Halifax said:

"We will not stop fighting until freedom for ourselves and others is assured."

"We realize the struggle may cost us everything," he continued, in a world broadcast, but Britons and others who oppose the Nazi ideology "will never accept this world of Hitler" with Germany according to these people who have one by one deprived of freedom."

Hitler, answering Hitler's "one last appeal" voiced in a speech by the Nazi führer to the Reichstag last Friday, declared that "across the wide Atlantic there are mighty nations which view his works with growing detestation," and he added:

FOUR DESTROYERS BEING FITTED OUT FOR MARINE CORPS

PLAN CREATION OF 'MINUTE MAN' EXPEDITIONARY FORCE FOR THIS HEMISPHERE

By EDWARD E. BOMAR.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(P)—The navy disclosed today that four destroyers were being fitted out for use of the Marine Corps, evidencing efforts to speed creation of a "minute man" expeditionary force ready for any hemisphere emergency.

The destroyers are World War veterans, recently recommissioned after years of idleness. Naval circles understood they would be converted into high speed transports, specially armed and equipped to put ashore advance forces at any hemisphere point where hostilities threatened.

Officials said the Marine Corps has rapidly been increased to a strength of approximately 28,000 officers and men, with the 34,000 men in sight.

The Marine Corps, subject to first orders for overseas service, is being expanded one-third by the formation of two new heavily armed defense battalions.

In addition to the destroyers transports, converted commercial vessels are to be made a part of the overseas force, informed congressmen understood.

The navy's intention, informed members reported, is to maintain in a high state of readiness.

IMAGINATION

These things he saw beyond his task:
A doll, a horn and drum,
The toys that children always ask,
Tall, blue delphinium,
Pale asters in a narrow bed
And sometimes honey for the bread.

We saw him starting on his way
To work," he said he went,
Never guessed from day to day
Exactly what he meant,
But every minute by the clock
Helped him towards a pretty frock.

And every minute of the hour,
And every hour of toll,
Brought something good of vine
And flower,
To grace his garden soil
Or decked with something of delight
The home to which he turned at night.

Some find within the tasks they face
But drudgery and pain,
But he beyond the commonplace
Found shelter from the rain,
And happy hearts and loving
And pretty frocks with ribbons tied.

LOCAL ELECTION

Whenever a national election looms local officials begin to worry about their own jobs. The illogical system of allowing national party politics to dominate county, city and state governmental affairs always shows up at its worst at such a time.

Incompetent officia lals bearing the same party label as the victorious national ticket are often swept into power while excellent officials who have served their community well on a nonpartisan basis may be kicked out because they are linked, by name at least, with the losing party in the campaign.

Such a situation does not speak well for the intelligence of the electorate. Adults ought to be able to find their way through the ballots on election day and to vote for good men for various offices regardless of party.

Some states and cities have purposely separated local from national elections in order to avoid the landslide peril. Voters then can concentrate on local problems and candidates without being distracted by the future of national politics. It's a good way to do.

ANGLO-AMERICANISM

Josiah Wedgwood, labor leader in the British House of Commons, has made a suggestion that will startle most Americans. Speaking of the possible transfer of many British women and children to this country, to escape present war perils in the British Isles, and declaring that the generous America "will not play second fiddle to the Dominions" in this service, he suggests a closer political union between Britain and America, such as was offered to France just before that nation's collapse.

"The time may come when America may make a like offer to us," he says. "That day, when it comes, will mean both the winning of this war and the salvation of the race."

A political union of the United States and the British Empire is something that few Americans and few Britons ever expected to hear of in their lifetime. Yet millions of Americans and millions of Britons, right now, might be disposed to say, after the first shock: "Well, we'll think it over."

In normal times it would be an outrageous suggestion. If it suddenly became a question of saving Anglo-Saxon and Anglo-American civilization well, who knows?

The English may have to give up their tea to save their independence. Well, the American colonists in 1776 thought independence was the more important.

The new French motto becomes "Labor, Family, Fatherland." That's all right, but it's less inspiring than "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity."

Defense comes high, but it's better than being chased from a bombed home by an eighty-ton tank.

Americans are not very conventional people, and yet life seems to be just one convention after another.

AGGIE HOGS HELD

GIVEN BY FRED HALE

(By The Associated Press)

The subject was butcher hogs and the two men talking knew whereof they spoke. They were W. W. Bailey, superintendent of State Farm Industries at Sugarland, where the canning and packing plant of the Texas prison system is located, and Fred Hale, chief of the division of swine husbandry of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at College Station.

Bailey bought a load of hogs from Hale for processing at the prison plant, and the two men talked about "Those Aggie hogs."

The outstanding thing about the hogs was the hardness of the carcass at the end of a 24-hour cook.

In comparing your hogs with the average run I can see there is room for a lot of improvement in the methods of feeders in Texas. I'd like to have your prescription for turning out such fine butcher hogs."

The outstanding thing about the hogs was the hardness of the carcass at the end of a 24-hour cook.

In comparing your hogs with the average run I can see there is room for a lot of improvement in the methods of feeders in Texas. I'd like to have your prescription for turning out such fine butcher hogs."

The subject was butcher hogs and the two men talking knew whereof they spoke. They were W. W. Bailey, superintendent of State Farm Industries at Sugarland, where the canning and packing plant of the Texas prison system is located, and Fred Hale, chief of the division of swine husbandry of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at College Station.
